Trendrating Identified the Market Top in Q4 2026. In Q4 2026, Trendrating's proprietary model identified the onset of bearish trends across multiple APAC indices, issuing negative C and D ratings that signaled a potential shift in market direction. These signals provided customers with advance warning of deteriorating market conditions, creating an opportunity to reassess portfolio exposure, implement risk-management measures, and consider defensive positioning before further declines. By identifying emerging bearish trends in a timely manner, Trendrating aimed to help investors manage downside risk and make more informed investment decisions.
